OBSERVATIONS.

[New York Press.]

In a friendship between two women there is either a man at the beginning or will be at the end of it.

A quarrel between two persons assumes its most serious aspect when a third party comes in who has nothing to do with it.

Revenge is sweet, but foregoing it is sweeter.

The rural visitor who comes to the city again, usually goes out of it blue.

The egotist is in most cases the man who has the least reason to be one.

Distraught makes miserable those who cherish it. Confidence is a good thing to have, even it is sometimes abused.

The desire for social supremacy is one of the most pitiable weaknesses in human nature.

Many of the disappointments of life come from mistaking acquaintances for friends.

A DREAM OF LONG AGO.

I stand in the land of the Long Ago

And my heart is light, and my mind is free,

And the breeze is soft as the winds that blow

Over the hills of the olden sea.

It is only a dream—would I never could wake

To throb and to yearn for the sunlight gone.

Would it could last for the heart must ache

When the Real comes back and the Dream has flown.

I lie by the river of Long Ago.

In the golden time of the long June

Oh! the grass is sweet, and the river's flow

Is whispering over the dear old time

That I hear with a passionate content.

Thou' my heart's aches and my pulse glow;

But I never dream that this life was meant

To hold such a pain as this Long Ago.

Only a dreamer, and only a dreamer

But was there a dream like this (the)

Of a girl's warm eyes, and the clinging kiss

Of a boy's first love—had it been the last.

As I dream in my dream I should be so,

Perhaps there would be no sting to the past

Or pain in this dream of the Long Ago!

THAT TELEPHONE TO BE TAKEN OFF.

(Chicago Tribune.)

There is a telephone in their residence and as it is used principally by Mrs. Binks and her friends it is perhaps natural that it should be identified solely with Mrs. Binks and that Mr. Binks well, Mr. Binks answered when the bell rang a few nights ago, and this is the conversation that took place:

"Hello!"

"Well?"

"Is this Mrs. Binks?"

"No."

"I mean is this Mrs. Binks' telephone?"

"No; it's the company's."

"Well, is this Mrs. Binks' home?"

"No. I don't know. I'm beginning to think that perhaps it is."

"What?"

"Yes, I guess it is. Every one seems to be in a hurry, and I'm sure it is."

THEIR OWN ARITHMETIC.

OWENSBORO, KY., Dec. 7, 1891.

EDITORIAL HERALD.—I see a very just criticism in your valued paper of the political methods employed and reported by Collector Feland and his henchmen. You only make the mistake when you lay the sin of political robbery at the door of the Republican party. Such outrages only emanate in the brain of such political non-descripts as Collector Feland and the high (?) political characters who control him here in Owensboro. That Mr. McAdams did what he was ordered to do in uniting the "Dear Ernest" letter, there can be no doubt, but Mr. Mc-Adams has to bear the odium, and have the cup of gall pressed to his lips by having his official head cut off to clear, as they think, Collector Feland and his son Prince Miller, who is the chief clerk in his father's office, of the vil-lism as he may, all knowledge of standing in a breeze, yet there is a regular tornado gathering that ere long will sweep him, Lawson Reno and M. V. Monarch from the face of the political earth. There are other political cattle who help to constitute this Angel, but the two great streams, truth and justice, will clean it out, and we trust that it will be done so thoroughly that their political filth will be er again be permitted to become a stench in the nostrils of a patriotic and decent people. That Lawson Reno, M. V. Monarch and Collector Feland were driven to the terrible political stratagem of committing political assassination just prior to the May County Convention and used as the assassin's weapon the promise of the Federal patronage, there can be no doubt. The promise was made to those who but a few days before, were their open and declared political enemies, who voted and worked for the passage of a set of resolutions denouncing Collector Feland and his political methods. Lawson Reno wrote one of these men a letter just before the Convention, who had in a public speech denounced political chicanery of the Collector. This man went to see Mr.

Reno at the Owensboro National Bank of which Reno is cashier. Reno used some kind of soothing syrup upon this man to quiet his declared opposition to the bank, and then said that John Johns is the dispenser of the Federal offices for this collection district. This same man has been appointed a United States Storekeeper long since, and is on duty, receiving four dollars per day at the expense of honest men with decent families being kicked out of office.

In addition to the above methods to carry that convention and thereby overcome the Collector's weakness as well as the weakness of his henchmen, they levied or caused to be levied an assessment of from five to ten dollars on each internal revenue officer. Of course the

THE INTRUDER.

That

disease is propagated by the terrible microbes, germs, etc., which fill the air we breathe and the water we drink, there can be no question. These microbes attack the human body and breed poison in many shapes.

Recent experiments read before the congress of surgeons at Berlin leave no doubt that the way to clear the system of these germs is to force them out through the pores of the skin. S. S. S.

does this in the most efficient way. It cleans them out entirely, and the poison as well.

Mr. F. Z. Nelson, a prominent and wealthy citizen of Fremont, Nebraska, endured for years with Scrofula, and continued to grow worse in spite of all treatment. Finally, four bottles of Swift's Specific cured him. He writes:

"I was inadequate to express my gratitude and favorable opinion of Swift's Specific."

Dangerous Fun.

(Owensboro Messenger.)

A steamboat race is always an exciting thing to the passengers. In the excitement, few think of the danger of the practice. There was a race on Green river Wednesday night, there came very nearly to a disastrous end.

The Evansville and Racine are rival boats in the trade, and both of them left Evansville about the same hour Wednesday afternoon. At sunset they made a landing at the same time, and both boats pulled out together. Every port of steam that both could carry was put on, and for an hour or so it was impossible to tell which was the faster.

At last the Racine made a start and whistled to pass. The Evansville was forced to give way and the new boat pulled ahead amid the cheers of her own passengers and the chagrin of the people on the other craft.

Determined not to lose the advantage she had gained the Racine went ahead.

Then the boat took fire. The blaze did not amount to anything, but there was consternation on board, a slackening of speed, and all hands were on the alert to keep the fire from spreading.

While this was going on the Evansville regained the ground she had lost, and passed her rival. As soon as the danger was over the Racine bravely resumed the race and passed the Evans-
